How to Measure, Sizes & Prices

Measure 1½" to 2" up from the corner of the horse's mouth. From that point, measure the circumference of the horse's nose (noseband).

From that same point (1½"–2" up from the corner of the horse's mouth), run your tape measure up the side of the face, around the poll (behind the ears) to the same point on the other side of the face (headstall).

- Another way of getting the headstall measurement is to measure (from 1½" – 2" up from the corner of the horse's mouth) to the very top of the poll (to the point right between the ears) and double that measurement.
- If your horse is worried by a tape measure, use something familiar to him, eg a lead rope or rein around the head and then take the measurement from that

We can supply any combination of headstall and noseband (except draft which has wider straps) to ensure a good fit – eg full headstall with cob noseband, large with medium noseband etc. Browbands can be swapped around too, if necessary.
